

October 28, 2010

Computer world featured an interview with TREM Center director Yaron Vorona:

Yaron Vorona, executive director of the Technology and Rare Earth Metals Center, which is part of the Institute for the Analysis of Global Security, says that China is using its monopoly to gain strategic advantage. "Whether they intend for it to be a strategic threat or not is a very good question," he said, at the Critical and Rare Metals Summit here on Wednesday.

Read the full article here:

http://www.computerworld.com/s/article/9193580/The_price_of_China_s_tech_metal_monopoly